New Haven, Conu., Nov. 20,-The Mecca | The all-absorbing topic in many cases of footballdom-New Haven-boasts of concerned the ticket preparation. Yale had hoped to solve this question with of pigzkin fams ever congregated today, the the first of the stream of visitors began to arrive by train, trolley and more than 80,000 applications for tickets, motorcars, their ultimate objective being the christening tomorrow of the Yale bowl, the world's greatest modern amphitheater, by the playing of the blue ribbon event of the Eastern intercollegitate football world—the Harvard-Yale who guarded them cautiously to escape game. War talk was relegated to the extreme rear, while the streets in the center, the hotel corridors and the hundred and one gathering places of the football crowds buzzed and hummed with discussion of tomorrow's contest.

The weather man, who had provided two days of typical New England winter, with cold rain, interspersed with occasional snow and the temperature hover-ing worried humanity.

The Yale team held their final practice on the Yale bowl today, consisting of punting, passing and signal work, and after there was a rush at the expected tonight and tomorrow. Rooms in private residences for the night were being eagerly snapped up at from $5 to $5.

In the emporiums where the crowds sathered who resarded the big game solely as a sporting proposition there solely as a sporting proposition there was a sporting proposition there was a dearth of Yale funds to cover.
